

CUSTOMER ADVISORY | AUGUST 18th, 2023

Hurricane Hilary Escalated to Category 4 Hurricane, Will Affect Flight Schedules in Mexico and US Southwest

Due to the expected impact of Hurricane Hilary, airlines have announced that flights may be cancelled on Sunday and Monday as locals prepare for the unprecedented weather event to pour a potential year's worth of rain on California, Nevada and Arizona.

Hurricane Hilary has rapidly intensified into a Category 4 hurricane and has affected flights in Mexico and the Southwestern United States. The storm's strong winds and heavy rains could lead to power outages, flooding, and disruptions to ground transportation and air travel. Airports in the region are already being affected, including Los Angeles, Long Beach, and more, leading to potential flight delays or cancellations.

Shipments passing through Mexico's Baja California and adjacent regions may experience delays and disruptions due to adverse weather conditions. Ground transportation, especially in Southern California, could be affected by flooding, mudslides, and road closures.

KWE aims to mitigate any disruptions to client supply chains and will continue to monitor the situation as it develops. Please contact your local representative for further information.

DISCLAIMER: The subject matter of this announcement is provided for informational purposes only. Any and all data is obtained from internal and external sources believed to be true and accurate at the time of publication. Forward-looking statements derived from such data should not be taken as guarantees of future performance, nor should they be relied upon as fact. KWE is not responsible or liable for any inaccurate information contained herein, and under no obligation to update forward looking statements except as required by applicable security laws.